Britain Facing Worst Economic Crisis Since War

LONDON (AP) — Britain's 280,000 coal miners go on strike at midnight tonight in a move expected to produce the nation's worst economic crisis since the dark days of World War II.

The executive board of the miners' union refused Friday to postpone the strike, despite an appeal by Prime Minister Edward Heath to wait until after the general election Feb. 28. The board's vote was 20-6.

Some of those who voted against postponement claimed their men were ready to stage wildcat strikes if the executive committee went against a walkout. Miners at several pits have jumped the gun by failing to report for work, and coal production this week was only 30 per cent of normal.

The miners' strike threat and a three-month work slowdown that produced a national power shortage were key causes of Heath's decision last Thursday to call the election. Coal provides 70 per cent of the country's electricity, and the power shortage already has forced the government to put nonessential industries on a three-day work week.

The all-out strike is expected to

Small Breaks Seen In Trucking Shutdown

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Small breaks began appearing today in the 10-day-old strike by independent truck drivers.

There still was strong resistance from many of the drivers whose refusal to move their cargoes of food, petroleum and industrial parts brought widespread layoffs and spot shortages of food and gasoline.

It appeared certain that most of the tens of thousands of parked rigs had not yet begun to move.

But two automakers recalled furloughed workers after saying truck shipment of needed material had resumed.

And several among the literally dozens of independent trucker organizations which have sprung up overnight began Friday night to urge their loosely organized memberships back on the road. Truck traffic was reported up slightly; a convoy of 20 produce-filled trucks headed out of Florida for the produce-short Northeast.

National officers of the Fraternal Steel Haulers Association, who claim to represent several thousand drivers, voted unanimously to recommend that their members accept government promises of all the fuel they need and immediate increases in freight rates.

Similar action was reported in Detroit Lakes, Minn., by the 800-member Midwest Independent Truckers Association. Trucker spokesmen Leonard Fleet, on a swing through Ohio to promote and explain the settlement he helped negotiate, said early today he had been assured by some independent trucker leaders in Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania that they were urging their men back on the road.

To make up for recent and future fuel price hikes, truckers will get an immediate increase of six per cent in the amount they charge for their cargo. That increase, which one driver said would mean about $30 more on a Philadelphia to Chicago run, eventually will show up in the prices consumers pay for truck-transported goods.

These developments, and mediation efforts by persons who were urged by President Nixon to "get the word out in the trucker's language," caused some officials to say they looked for over-the-road movement of freight to be back to normal by Monday.

Government officials said truck traffic was up 20 per cent. The exact increase was not possible to determine, and a heavy snowfall on the Atlantic Seaboard made it tougher to determine whether traffic was up significantly.

But at least 100,000 persons remained unemployed. And several thousand of the more militant truckers continued to vow they would not go back to work until diesel fuel prices are rolled back.

National Guardsmen remained on duty in eight states. Minnesota Gov. Wendell R. Anderson ordered state police on 12-hour shifts; Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace called out National Guard Military Police.

Violence that has marked this strike from the beginning was down sharply. But it was not ended.

Three shotgun blasts were fired over a truck near Tyler, Tex. In Virginia, another trucker escaped injury when a bullet was fired at his vehicle from an oncoming car near Gala on U.S. 220. The shot missed his truck.

In Washington, Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe said the Justice Department is investigating 10 potential antitrust conspiracy cases related to the strike. He also said investigators were

Israel Won't Give Up Golan Heights To Syria

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli Premier Golda Meir says her country will not withdraw from Syrian territory on the Golan Heights held before the October war.

Mrs. Meir on Friday told Israeli settlers in the area that the Heights is an "inseparable part of Israel," according to the Israeli state radio.

The settlers have expressed concern that some of the Heights would be returned to the Arabs as part of a troop disengagement pact with Syria. Newspaper reports said that Israel would consider withdrawing one to three miles behind the lines set after the 1967 war.

Israel has expressed willingness to return 300 square miles of Syrian territory captured when Israeli armored units drove beyond the Heights to within 22 miles of Damascus last October.

Meanwhile, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said Friday that no progress has been made on troop disengagement on the Syrian front. Syria has demanded that Israel agree on a withdrawal plan from all Arab lands before talking about the disengagement issue.

A Cairo newspaper reported today that Arab leaders were considering a summit meeting in a few days on "the probabilities of disengaging Syrian and Israeli troops on the Golan Heights."

The newspaper Akhbar el Youm did not say where the conference would be held nor who would attend. It indicated that Egypt's President Anwar Sadat, Saudi Arabian King Faisal, Algeria's President Houari Boumedienne and President Hafez Assad of Syria would take part.

Probe Shows Nixon Owes More Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the congressional committee looking into President Nixon's tax returns says a preliminary investigation indicates the President owes additional taxes.

"We are going to say how much the President owes," Sen. Russell B. Long, chairman of the Senate-House Internal Revenue Taxation Committee, said Friday.

Long added, "We don't have any information to indicate that the President was not in good faith" when he filed his federal income tax returns for 1969-72.

The White House had no comment on the Louisiana Democrat's statements.

The committee is investigating the validity of Nixon's $576,000 deduction for a gift of his papers to the National Archives and a possible capital gains liability resulting from sale of some San Clemente, Calif. real estate.

The committee staff has said it may be ready to report to the committee by the end of this month.

The Internal Revenue Service also is re-auditing the 1969-72 returns.

In a television interview recorded for showing by Louisiana stations, the senator was asked about reports that Nixon might owe more than $300,000. Long replied:

"You said that ... but I heard you and I can't contradict it."

"Everything I know would indicate that he (Nixon) did what his lawyer and his accountant told him to do," Long said.

"He claimed deductions that they thought, or, at least, that they advised him, they felt he was entitled to take... If he had put as much time on his tax returns as one of our more conscientious senators does, just working diligently, he wouldn't have had time to be President," Long added.

The question was raised in the interview of whether there might be a taxpayers' revolt if it was revealed that the President had underpaid his taxes substantially.

"When the taxpayers see how this thing works out, there won't be any taxpayers' revolt," Long said.

"I just urge you to just wait until we can report because we are going to say exactly how much the President owes."

Skylab Crew Healthy, Happy

ABOARD USS NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The third and last trio of Skylab astronauts, snapping back quickly from post-landing dizziness, were reported healthy and happy today as this Navy carrier bore them homeward.

Returning to earth's gravity on Friday after a record 84 days in space, Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue said they felt lead-footed but generally quite good.

"I never knew I weighed this much," Gibson said after walking out of the Apollo command ship that brought the men back from space.

The New Orleans, which pulled the spacecraft from the ocean some 177 miles southwest of San Diego, Calif., was due in San Diego about noon EDT today.

The astronauts will remain aboard the carrier in San Diego harbor until 4:50 p.m. EDT Sunday. Then, after a brief dockside ceremony, they will fly to Houston, Tex., for a reunion with their families.

The space agency said the overnight stay aboard the New Orleans would give doctors the opportunity for more medical examinations before the astronauts' bodies further adapt to earth's gravity.

Space agency flight surgeon Dr. Jerry Hordinsky said after preliminary medical exams Friday that the Skylab 3 crew was at least as healthy, if not healthier, than the men of Skylab 2 after their 59-day mission. National Aeronautics and Space Administration doctors got a start on finding out the crew's exact health status with more than six hours of tests on board ship Friday. The astronauts faced about double that amount of time in tests today and more tests Sunday.

Dr. Royce Hawkins, a NASA health official, said at the Johnson Space Center in Houston that he was elated and delighted with the first reports on the crew's condition. Unless extensive tests show deleterious changes in their bodies, it appears men could fly in space for a year or two without much trouble, he said.

Carr, Gibson and Pogue spent more time exercising than the two previous crews, and this was widely held to be the chief reason for their seemingly good health on returning.

"Boy, if we hadn't exercised, we would have been like jellyfish when we came back," Hordinsky said Pogue told him.

President Nixon, in a statement issued after the Skylab 3 crew's return, called the Skylab program "one of the most scientifically productive endeavors in the history of human exploration."

Skylab project manager William C. Schneider said Friday's splashdown "completes what I would consider the historical phase of Skylab."

He said the science phase would begin now, with scores of scientists evaluating the photographs, electronic tapes and other pieces of Skylab information.

Despite a leak in one of two identical rocket steering systems, the ferry ship's return from the 272-mile-high space station went without a hitch.

Transportation Message Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is taking to radio to elaborate on the transportation measures he proposed in his State of the Union message last week.

The President scheduled a live broadcast from the White House for 3:06 p.m. EDT today. The ABC, CBS and NBC radio networks planned to carry the 15-minute speech.

Aides said Nixon would supplement today's talk with a transportation message to Congress in a few days.

In his State of the Union address and in his fiscal 1975 budget proposal last Tuesday, Nixon recommended that outlays for transportation programs be increased by $600 million above the 1974 level of $9 billion.

Under the administration's proposed Unified Transportation Assistance Program, federal funds would be provided for construction of noninterstate highways and mass transit systems and for purchase of buses and rail cars. For the first time, some federal funds also would be available to help subsidize transit operations.

Pending enactment of the program, Nixon said, capital grants for mass transit would be increased by more than 50 per cent, to $1.4 billion.

Highways would get $4.8 billion of the total transportation budget, including some $250 million to correct dangerous road crossings and bridges.

Nixon also has said he would propose modernizing the regulatory system governing the nation's railroads to help rail carriers operate and compete more effectively with other modes of transportation.

The President in his State of the Union address linked the energy crisis with the need for an efficient transportation system that would permit Americans to travel at reasonable cost.

Outdoor Recreation, Energy Pinch Studied

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio is planning the first study in the nation of the effects of the energy crisis on outdoor recreation, state Natural Resources Director William Nye said Friday.

Nye announced the state had received $10,500 in matching federal funds to conduct the study, which will be incorporated into the 1975-80 Ohio Outdoor Recreation Plan.

"We foresee a demand for more family-oriented recreation facilities close to urban areas," he said.

The study will be conducted by Miami of Ohio University and the Department of Natural Resources.

Some truckers were not buying those arguments. Groups of 300 and 400 truckers voted Thursday and Friday in Georgia, Florida, Texas, Missouri, Illinois, Connecticut, Minnesota, Delaware, Arizona and North and South Dakota to continue the strike.

Shapp got a cool reception from the truckers, who emphasized their continued demand for a diesel price rollback. They said, and other truckers agreed, that solving drivers' problems by upping freight rates was only going to hurt consumers, a group they also belong to.

Shapp argued that the settlement was an improvement and asked the drivers to go back to work for 60 days while congressional proposals to roll back the price of some domestic oil are debated. Such an action presumably also would mean a rollback in diesel fuel prices.

Ohio Truckers Get Pact Details

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A spokesman for an independent trucker group said early today regional leaders in the trucking strike have agreed to recommend acceptance of the proposed settlement worked out Thursday with government officials in Washington.

Leonard Fleet, who represented the Council of Independent Truckers (CIT) in the Washington talks, was cautiously optimistic, calling the acceptance by regional leaders a "first step" toward ending the trucking shutdown.

Fleet said 35 to 40 persons from Ohio, Pennsylvania and Michigan attended the meeting at the home of Lester Salsgiver in Lodi.

Ohio has been a center of strike activity, and George Rynn, CIT president, has called the proposed settlement inadequate.

But Rynn said the proposal would be put to a vote.

Another CIT leader said at a meeting at the council's headquarters in Barberton Friday night that the truckers will continue their shutdown until the government rolls back fuel prices.

However, he said the proposal will be presented to the membership at a meeting Sunday night at Barberton High School.

Fleet, who flew to Ohio from Washington Friday, said he is "going out into the field" today and Sunday to talk to truckers and explain the Washington settlement.

He said those leaders he met with Friday night had opposed the settlement because "they didn't have enough information" but changed their position after hearing details.

"They accepted the settlement just as we did in Washington."

Fleet said major factors in the settlement are provision for allowing the truckers to add a surcharge to their rates to recover increased fuel costs, "plus the fuel availability."

Earlier, Fleet told newsmen at Cleveland Hopkins International Airport an "immediate effect (of the settlement) will be to assure Sunday sales of fuel to truckers."

He said also the proposal includes "the means of transferring fuel reserves from one region of the country...to other regions where the fuel is in short supply."

Meanwhile, truck traffic was reported on the increase in Ohio.

However, a state official said the number of layoffs blamed on the truckers' strike also continued to increase. John Mountain of the Department of Economic and Community Development said the total layoffs had climbed to 30,000 Friday from 29,000 Thursday.

Mountain said the department estimates if the shutdown continues layoffs could total 80,000 by the end of next week.

County Extension Agent,
Home Economics

I will soon be mailing out an extension homemaker's letter study course titled "Money Mysteries." There are six lessons, one mailed out each week to anyone who wishes to participate. The lessons are titled: "Consumer Credit," "Planning Family Spending," "Know Your Valuable Papers," "Your Children and Money," "Long Time Financial Planning," and "Family Protection." Several lessons include O.S.U. bulletins. This series would be such a good updating of financial planning for you homemakers. We can all use help during these days of shortages, strikes, lay-offs, and inflation. I hope many of you will take advantage of this little "school through the mail." Would you believe it's free! Contact me at 137 W. Franklin Street, Circleville, or at 474-7534.

Tri State Food Show Scheduled

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent

A big, three-day show at the Hara Sports Arena in Dayton on February 20, 21, and 22 will focus attention on food. The Pickaway County Pork Council is chartering a bus to take Pickaway County visitors to this big 3 state event on Friday, February 22. If you want a reservation on the bus call the County Extension Office, at 474-7534, for a reservation. Both men and women are going on the bus.

Called the Tri-State Food and You Show and designed to attract visitors from wide areas of Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky, the event will feature educational and commercial displays, plus talks and demonstrations related to all links of the food chain from the farm to the dinner table.

The program will include subjects of interest to both the farmer and the consumer. Farmers will see exhibits and demonstrations of the latest production equipment. They'll also hear talks on farm business management and they'll have an opportunity to consult with Extension specialists of The Ohio State University about a wide range of production and management problems.

Consumers will learn new ways to stretch their food dollars. They'll get valuable food-buying and food preparation tips, and they'll see exhibits and demonstrations on how to identify top quality beef, pork, lamb, and dairy and poultry products. They'll also see the latest models of dozens of home appliances.

Forty-one talks and demonstrations will highlight the women's programs. Speakers from the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service will discuss such topics as the metric system, new soy protein foods, home canning, and food costs.

An exhibit by Ohio State's Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology will include information on property transfer planning and the new Ohio Workmen's Compensation law.

A beef exhibit will show visitors what's under the hide in terms of steaks, roasts, and ground beef, and a pork exhibit will point out what's involved in producing nutritious pork.

Today there are only 10,000 to 15,000 vicunas. Most are in Peru, grazing the puna, a high, arid land between the timberline and the snow line.

I plan to attend on Friday, February 22, and would be delighted to have any of you homemakers accompany me. If enough people are interested, our office will arrange for a bus, with expenses shared by those attending. Some of the Friday presentations include: "Soy Protein Foods, Canning is Making a Comeback, Know What You Are Eating, Microwave Cooking, What's New in Small Appliances, and Food and Your Weight." This is only part of the program; there are other topics especially for the males, homemakers, and a wide variety of exhibits and demonstrations. Please contact me soon if you plan to attend.

LOW CARBOHYDRATE?

Yes, you can lose weight on the latest recycled version of an old attempt to limit calories. But, the Food and Nutrition Council of the American Medical Association labels such diets as "unscientific and dangerous." Such diets can cause fatigue, a tendency to fainting, headache, nausea and vomiting. It can cause the same type of chemical imbalance which diabetics have when developing a diabetic coma. This chemical imbalance is conducive to loss of calcium from the bones, particularly hazardous to middle-aged and older women. Carbohydrate diets often have large amounts of fat, which in some people can raise the cholesterol level in the blood. Incidentally, the carbohydrate diet is not "new." The first one was probably the "Banting Diet" of 1863, which was long before much about nutrition was known.

With an absence of carbohydrates, the kidneys tend to lose salt, and with this, a lot of water. This is probably why the diet users claim so much weight loss at the outset. By the third day, the energy level is very low and fatigue sets in. Body dehydration becomes a problem, causing fainting. Is all that really worth a few pounds? The real goal is to lose weight, not get sick. For most people, eating a diet balanced in all foods is best; just cutting out seconds can do wonders. Eat smaller servings of all foods, from all the food groups.

Good Oat Varieties Available

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Good oat varieties are available to Ohio farmers for 1974 production, according to Gordon J. Ryder, Extension Agronomist at The Ohio State University. In fact, he says, there are several from which farmers can choose.

Clintford, the most popular variety, has earned its reputation because of its high quality seed and stiff straw. It is an early maturing variety.

Clintland 60, a medium-early maturing variety has done well, Ryder says, as has Garland, which also has a medium early maturity. All three of these varieties have proven records and the capability of producing high yields in Ohio.

Otee and Dal are two promising new varieties, but available seed supplies will be limited this year. Otee is about a day later than Clintford in maturity. It has excellent barley yellow dwarf resistance and has an excellent yield record to date. It has many of the characteristics of Jaycee, plus better straw strength, and it stands better when ripe. Many farmers will remember that Jaycee had a weakness in this regard.

Dal has a good performance record for grain and also for forage. It is about a week later than Clintford and has excellent rust resistance.

In the 1972 oat trials, conducted by Dale Ray, agronomist at OSU, Otee and Dal ranked in the top three at six of the seven locations. Of the seven locations, the varieties also performed well in the 1973 yield trials.

Ryder concludes that there will be a good supply of seed oats available for the 1974 planting. However, he adds that the two new varieties, Otee and Dal, will not be available in abundant supply. Each farmer, he points out, must calculate for himself if oats will be competitive to other crops he can grow on his farm.

The new 1974-75 Agronomy Guides are available at the Pickaway County Extension Office, at 137 W. Franklin Street, in Circleville.

Party Chief Quits Post

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Franklin County Republican party Chairman William H. Schneider announced Thursday he will quit his post in May, surrendering nearly 40 years of family control of the county GOP.

Schneider, whose father, William Schneider, was chairman from 1936 to 1969, said he needed to devote more time to his law practice.

He denied his resignation was the result of pressure from disenchanted party members who have been urging his ouster for about a year.

He said he will retain his position on the state central committee and will replace his father on the Franklin County Board of Elections.

At its meeting Thursday, the GOP central committee also ratified the county party convention's en-

And So It Grows

By GEORGE HAMRICK

Agriculture

While you're waiting around for spring, take a good look at your landscape. Does it stack up the way you want it to? How about trees and shrubs; are they properly located for their size and rate of growth?

Trees and Shrubs

Selection of plants for maintenance requirements should be based on the functional use or purpose of the plant in the landscape design, according to Fred Buscher, Area Extension Agent, Horticulture. Some other factors include whether an evergreen or a deciduous plant is needed; rate of growth; ultimate size at maturity; effect of flowers, fruit and foliage; and form and habit of growth, bark, twig and branching characteristics.

Most trees and shrubs require some periodic pruning. Fewer varieties but more plants of the same variety can result in easier maintenance and will help create continuity in the planting design, Buscher says. Special cultural requirements such as soils, water, fertilizer, exposure, pest problems, or pruning needs should be known.

Ground Covers

With ground cover plantings, maintenance is needed the first year until the plants are established and ground area between the plants is covered. Selection of varieties to use can be determined on a similar basis as for trees and shrubs. Herbicides, as recommended in Ohio, can be used for weed control. Also, applications of fertilizers, mulches, and water hasten establishment. Spacing plants at nine inches apart will give cover in one year, whereas spacing them at 18 inches apart will provide cover in two to three years. Close spacing will cost more the first year, but requires less maintenance than wider spaced plantings.

For additional information on "Planning for Maintenance in the Landscape Design Process," contact Fred K. Buscher, Area Extension Agent, Horticulture, Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, Wooster, Ohio 44691.

Storm Delays Nixon Checkup

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon headed for the naval hospital in suburban Bethesda, Md., today for a physical checkup, but snowstorm traffic tie-ups forced him to return to the White House before reaching his destination.

The White House said that Nixon left unannounced for his annual physical exam shortly after 8 a.m.

But within the hour word was relayed to reporters that he was turning back because a snowstorm had clogged rush hour traffic along the route.

This marked the second postponement of Nixon's yearly checkup.

We're beating the drum for Warrior Alfalfa!

And more and more growers are getting the message.

Warrior Alfalfa is a favorite of "dehy" operators and a proven "cash-maker" for thousands of farmers. They report six, seven and up to nine-ton yields.

Warrior recovers fast, no matter how many times it's cut. Big leaves and fine stems have high protein content. Warrior has strong seedling vigor, produces full stands fast. It does exceptionally well either on dryland or under irrigation...can be seeded spring or fall.

Warrior provides long term stands...it's highly wilt-resistant and tolerant to leaf spot disease. It stands up well under extreme summer conditions and hard winters.

Come in and get the message on Warrior.

News For Homemakers

By BEVERLY BECHTEL
County Extension Agent,
Home Economics

I will soon be mailing out an extension homemaker's letter study course titled "Money Mysteries." There are six lessons, one mailed out each week to anyone who wishes to participate. The lessons are titled: "Consumer Credit," "Planning Family Spending," "Know Your Valuable Papers," "Your Children and Money," "Long Time Financial Planning," and "Family Protection." Several lessons include O.S.U. bulletins. This series would be such a good updating of financial planning for you homemakers. We all can use help during these days of shortages, strikes, lay-offs, and inflation. I hope many of you will take advantage of this little "school through the mail." Would you believe it's free! Contact me at 137 W. Franklin Street, Circleville, or at 474-7534.

FOOD AND YOU

I received the schedule for the "Food and You" show in Hara Arena, Dayton, to be held February 20-22. It is a tri-state presentation, free to anyone

Tri State Food Show Scheduled

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent
Agriculture

A big, three-day show at the Hara Sports Arena in Dayton on February 20, 21, and 22 will focus attention on food. The Pickaway County Pork Council is chartering a bus to take Pickaway County visitors to this big 3 state event on Friday, February 22. If you want a reservation on the bus call the County Extension Office, at 474-7534, for a reservation. Both men and women are going on the bus.

Called the Tri-State Food and You Show and designed to attract visitors from wide areas of Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky, the event will feature educational and commercial displays, plus talks and demonstrations related to all links of the food chain from the farm to the dinner table.

The program will include subjects of interest to both the farmer and the consumer. Farmers will see exhibits and demonstrations of the latest production equipment. They'll also hear talks on farm business management and they'll have an opportunity to consult with Extension specialists of The Ohio State University about a wide range of production and management problems.

Consumers will learn new ways to stretch their food dollars. They'll get valuable food-buying and food preparation tips, and they'll see exhibits and demonstrations on how to identify top quality beef, pork, lamb, and dairy and poultry products. They'll also see the latest models of dozens of home appliances.

Forty-one talks and demonstrations will highlight the women's programs. Speakers from the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service will discuss such topics as the metric system, new soy protein foods, home canning, and food costs.

An exhibit by Ohio State's Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology will include information on property transfer planning and the new Ohio Workmen's Compensation law.

A beef exhibit will show visitors what's under the hide in terms of steaks, roasts, and ground beef, and a pork exhibit will point out what's involved in producing nutritious pork.

Today there are only 10,000 to 15,000 vicunas. Most are in Peru, grazing the puna, a high, arid land between the timberline and the snow line.

who wants to learn more about food, food costs, and nutrition. The program for each day is quite similar. I plan to attend on Friday, February 22, and would be delighted to have any of you homemakers accompany me. If enough people are interested, our office will arrange for a bus, with expenses shared by those attending. Some of the Friday presentations include: "Soy Protein Foods, Canning is Making a Comeback, Know What You Are Eating, Microwave Cooking, What's New in Small Appliances, and Food and Your Weight." This is only part of the program; there are other topics especially for the males, homemakers, and a wide variety of exhibits and demonstrations. Please contact me soon if you plan to attend.

LOW CARBOHYDRATE?

Yes, you can lose weight on the latest recycled version of an old attempt to limit calories. But, the Food and Nutrition Council of the American Medical Association labels such diets as "unscientific and dangerous." Such diets can cause fatigue, a tendency to fainting, headache, nausea and vomiting. It can cause the same type of chemical imbalance which diabetics have when developing a diabetic coma. This chemical imbalance is conducive to loss of calcium from the bones, particularly hazardous to middle-aged and older women. Carbohydrate diets often have large amounts of fat, which in some people can raise the cholesterol level in the blood. Incidentally, the carbohydrate diet is not "new." The first one was probably the "Banting Diet" of 1863, which was long before much about nutrition was known.

With an absence of carbohydrates, the kidneys tend to lose salt, and with this, a lot of water. This is probably why the diet users claim so much weight loss at the outset. By the third day, the energy level is very low and fatigue sets in. Body dehydration becomes a problem, causing fainting. Is all that really worth a few pounds? The real goal is to lose weight, not get sick. For most people, eating a diet balanced in all foods is best; just cutting out seconds can do wonders. Eat smaller servings of all foods, from all the food groups.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

He Won't Insist

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old girl. I don't mean to brag, but people have told me I am very pretty and have a good personality.

I have never had sex with anybody. I am saving myself for marriage. Some fellows have tried to talk me out of it, but so far I've managed to stay pure. I recently met a fellow (24) who told me that I am the kind of girl he would like to marry, but before he gets serious with me I will have to have sex with him because sex is important to him, and he wants to be sure I can satisfy his sexual demands.

I like this fellow more than any I've ever dated, but I don't want to give in. On the other hand, I'm afraid if I don't, he'll drop me. What should I do?

SAVING MYSELF
DEAR SAVING: Tell him you have a few demands that have to be satisfied, too. One of them is your own self-respect. And feeling as you do about saving yourself for marriage, if he doesn't want to accept it, he's not for you. I have an idea he may not drop you. But if he does, you could be lucky.

DEAR ABBY: I own an apartment building. One of my tenants is a retired school teacher. He is a proper gentleman and if anyone says "hell" in front of him, he raises his eyebrows and says, "Please I do not tolerate profanity."

Well, a young newlywed couple has the apartment next to this old gentleman, and they use a lot of four letter words in their conversations. Naturally, it's a source of great annoyance to this gentleman, and he complains to me daily about it.

I have told the newlyweds not to talk so loud, and to cut out the four-letter words, but it hasn't done any good. The newlyweds claim this old man must have his ear to the wall because they talk in normal voices and do not shout. So what should I do?

LANDLORD
DEAR LANDLORD: You be the judge. Ask the complainer if you may visit his apartment and learn for yourself whether the neighbors are out of line-or if HE is.

DEAR ABBY: My husband died suddenly three months ago. Last month was our 36th wedding anniversary. I didn't receive one gift or anniversary card from any of our friends who always used to remember us on that occasion. I felt terribly let down and hurt.

I have been told that when your mate dies, you no longer have a wedding anniversary. Is that true?

It seems you are treated entirely different after you lose your mate. You suddenly become a third wheel-unwanted and unnecessary. What do you think?

ALONE AND LONELY
DEAR ALONE: When one's mate dies, the wedding anniversaries cease. Your friends probably felt that sending gifts or cards would have revived memories of past anniversaries, which could conceivably sadden you, since you are now alone.

However, instead of ignoring the occasion, it would have been a kindness for some friends to have invited you out on that day.

4-H...People Helping People

By STEVE BARTELS
County Extension Agent,
4-H

4-H enrollment weeks in Pickaway County will be February 18 through March 2. We will be contacting all the elementary schools in the county and speaking to the third, fourth, and fifth grades. I am sure we will have many new children wanting to join the 4-H clubs again this year.

One of the most important aspects of our 4-H program is getting new advisors for all these new members. Every year we form new clubs in new areas or with new projects. With the ever increasing number of clubs it requires an ever increasing number of adults for this important job. We need two to three advisors to help each other help the club members. This gives adults an excellent opportunity to get involved with youth in a positive manner.

I think if adults become involved with children in a situation where the child needs their help when they are young the child will be more likely to come to this adult as he grows older. As the title of my articles imply, 4-H gives people an opportunity to interact and help each other. After all, this is what it's all about, isn't it? If you would like this opportunity please contact the Extension Office at 474-7534.

Our dog clubs are one of our fastest growing clubs in the county. In these clubs the members learn to groom and care for the dogs. The dogs are taught obedience. For the dog to be entered in the club, it must be at least 6 months old, be licensed and vaccinated. The only equipment that is required is a choke chain and a 6 foot leather leash. Due to the obedience training, the dogs must go through, the closing date for entering the club is February 28. If you are interested in joining the club, go to the next meeting on Thursday, February 14, at 7:30 p.m., at the fairgrounds coliseum, or contact me at the Extension Office, 474-7534.

PRJVS Registration Deadline Feb. 15

The Circleville High School Guidance Department has announced Feb. 15 is the last date to register for all programs at the Pickaway-Ross Joint Vocational School which is to begin sessions September of this year. Applications will still be available and accepted after this date, but students will only be considered for programs that have not been over-subscribed.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

He Won't Insist

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old girl. I don't mean to brag, but people have told me I am very pretty and have a good personality.

I have never had sex with anybody. I am saving myself for marriage. Some fellows have tried to talk me out of it, but so far I've managed to stay pure.

I recently met a fellow (24) who told me that I am the kind of girl he would like to marry, but before he gets serious with me I will have to have sex with him because sex is important to him, and he wants to be sure I can satisfy his sexual demands.

I like this fellow more than any I've ever dated, but I don't want to give in. On the other hand, I'm afraid if I don't, he'll drop me. What should I do?

SAVING MYSELF

DEAR SAVING: Tell him you have a few demands that have to be satisfied, too. One of them is your own self-respect. And feeling as you do about saving yourself for marriage, if he doesn't want to accept it, he's not for you. I have an idea he may not drop you. But if he does, you could be lucky.

DEAR ABBY: I own an apartment building. One of my tenants is a retired school teacher. He is a proper gentleman and if anyone says "hell" in front of him, he raises his eyebrows and says, "Please I do not tolerate profanity."

Well, a young newlywed couple has the apartment next to this old gentleman, and they use a lot of four letter words in their conversations. Naturally, it's a source of great annoyance to this gentleman, and he complains to me daily about it.

I have told the newlyweds not to talk so loud, and to cut out the four-letter words, but it hasn't done any good. The newlyweds claim this old man must have his ear to the wall because they talk in normal voices and do not shout. So what should I do?

LANDLORD

DEAR LANDLORD: You be the judge. Ask the complainer if you may visit his apartment and learn for yourself whether the neighbors are out of line or if HE is.

DEAR ABBY: My husband died suddenly three months ago. Last month was our 36th wedding anniversary. I didn't receive one gift or anniversary card from any of our friends who always used to remember us on that occasion. I felt terribly let down and hurt.

I have been told that when your mate dies, you no longer have a wedding anniversary. Is that true?

It seems you are treated entirely different after you lose your mate. You suddenly become a third wheel—unwanted and unnecessary.

What do you think?

ALONE AND LONELY

DEAR ALONE: When one's mate dies, the wedding anniversaries cease. Your friends probably felt that sending gifts or cards would have revived memories of past anniversaries, which could conceivably sadden you, since you are now alone.

However, instead of ignoring the occasion, it would have been a kindness for some friends to have invited you out on that day.

4-H...People Helping People

By STEVE BARTELS
County Extension Agent,
4-H

4-H enrollment weeks in Pickaway County will be February 18 through March 2. We will be contacting all the elementary schools in the county and speaking to the third, fourth, and fifth grades. I am sure we will have many new children wanting to join the 4-H clubs again this year.

One of the most important aspects of our 4-H program is getting new advisors for all these new members. Every year we form new clubs in new areas or with new projects. With the ever increasing number of clubs it requires an ever increasing number of adults for this important job. We need two to three advisors to help each other help the club members. This gives adults an excellent opportunity to get involved with youth in a positive manner.

I think if adults become involved with children in a situation where the child needs their help when they are young the child will be more likely to come to this adult as he grows older. As the title of my articles imply, 4-H gives people an opportunity to interact and help each other. After all, this is what it's all about, isn't it? If you would like this opportunity please contact the Extension Office at 474-7534.

Our dog clubs are one of our fastest growing clubs in the county. In these clubs the members learn to groom and care for the dogs. The dogs are taught obedience. For the dog to be entered in the club, it must be at least 6 months old, be licensed and vaccinated. The only equipment that is required is a choke chain and a 6 foot leather leash. Due to the obedience training, the dogs must go through, the closing date for entering the club is February 28. If you are interested in joining the club, go to the next meeting on Thursday, February 14, at 7:30 p.m., at the fairgrounds coliseum, or contact me at the Extension Office, 474-7534.

Bittersweet Memories

Few who have long memories would want to live again through the 1920s, with their burden of violence (though this seems tame to many old timers compared to recent developments) public hypocrisy, their retreat from reality, their irresponsibility and extravagance, and their last dark year.

But the so-called Roaring Twenties were filled with merry nonsense and a wonderful cast of characters that included hoodlums and heroes, saints and sinners, the knavish and the noble. Everywhere—in sports and politics, in the arts and sciences—there were giants.

Until its last bleak months, it was a decade of mirth and excitement, of improbable persons and incredible events. Its literature, dress, songs, amusements and attitudes possessed a distinctive style and flavor.

For every generation there is a golden past, recalled as a time when everything was better, more secure, more peaceful, happier or more amusing than the present. It is not surprising that the 1920s, their dark associations forgotten and only their fun and frolic remembered, should be taking on a happy aura.

Good For What Ailed Us

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—Four centuries before Christ, Hippocrates observed, "Some patients, though conscious that their condition is perilous, recover their health simply through their contentment with the goodness of the physician."

He must have had in mind men of the calibre of our family doctor, Arthur Lucas. Dr. Lucas, who in all probability would have lost his life in the savagery of Hitler's Germany, has practiced medicine in New York since he arrived from his native land these many years ago. He is the kindest man our family knows.

Last week we received a letter from him announcing in the calmest of phrases that he must close his office in face of a serious illness. It moved my wife to write to him as follows:

"Dear Doctor:
"We were devastated to learn today that you are retiring because of ill health; devastated for two reasons. First and foremost, because you are ill. (Somehow, one never thinks of one's doctor ever getting sick.) And, second, from a selfish viewpoint. To whom can we turn now? We've leaned on you for a quarter of a century, and you have never once let us down.

"You were that rare and rapidly disappearing breed of doctor who will come in the middle of the night in case of emergency, and how often you did just that for us. Even for friends and relatives of ours you didn't even know, I'll never forget your ploughing through a terrible snowstorm one night to give my mother an emergency shot of insulin.

"You were also that extremely rare breed of doctor who did everything possible to prevent the patient's having an operation you considered unnecessary. Remember the crazy time a surgeon and you had an argument at the foot of Bob's bed? The other doctor insisted that he be rushed to the hospital immediately for an appendectomy. You said that all he needed was a high colonic. Well, he still has his appendix 20 years later.

"Then there was the time I went to another doctor for a pain in my hip. You were in Israel at the time, as a consultant to their hospital system. Anyway, the doctor took X-rays and told me I needed an operation on my hip. I waited until you returned.

You took your own X-rays and cleared up the trouble with one shot of something or other. You were the rare kind who really cares about his patients, and helps with the psychological as well as the physical problems that arise in a family. As you forcibly retire, take comfort from the fact that over the long years you did your very best, far beyond the call of duty, and that you were deeply appreciated.

"It's sad that doctors like you and pharmacists like my dad was are but fading memories of a gentler, happier, more trusting past. I was brought up in my dad's drugstore. I remember people coming to him to have something taken out of their eyes, or for a pill to alleviate pain, or for a suggestion as to what medicine to take for a particular ailment. Maybe it wasn't cricket, even in those far gone days. But Dad never let anybody down.

"Can you imagine very many druggists doing that today? Not long ago a big foreign particle flew into my eye as I was walking down the street and I instinctively went into the nearest drugstore. The druggist only laughed when I asked if he could see the particle, and sent me to an eye doctor in the next block. Would you believe I had to give the nurse or receptionist my age, entire personal and family medical history? It amounted to a whole page of information before the doctor would see me and remove the cinder or whatever it was. I still don't know what my eye had to do with something in my eye!

"As desolate as we are over losing you as a doctor, we are consoled by still having you as a friend, and we hope to see you often. The only thing is that now I'm afraid of getting sick or having an accident. I was never afraid before, because I always knew you were there and would make everything all right. We hope and pray everything will be better for you.

"We love you, Dr. Lucas."

Oil Import Picture Brighter, Advisory Group Indicates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government has been told that the impact of the Arab oil embargo may be less severe than had been expected.

And, a semiadvisory group reported Thursday, oil imports may actually increase in February and March.

For the first quarter of 1974, the group said, the United States may face an 11 per cent oil shortage instead of the 14 per cent predicted only last December.

The report was made to the Emergency Petroleum Supply Committee — an oil industry advisory group with a government official as its chairman — by one of its subcommittees.

Walter Uhle, a retired Caltex vice president who presented the subcommittee report, said the Arab oil embargo was most severe in December, before the Arab nations began relaxing their oil cut-off to all but a few nations considered friendly to Israel.

"The relaxation has improved the situation, essentially, outside the United States," Uhle said.

For the first quarter of this year, he said, Europe can expect a five per cent oil shortage instead of the 18 per cent predicted in December; Japan and South Korea may be 10 per cent short instead of 15 to 25 per cent; and the "free world" shortage should be about 7 per cent instead of 13 per cent.

Uhle said the new first quarter estimates assume that the Arabs will continue their embargo against the United States, the Netherlands, Portugal and South Africa.

Even so, the United States was expected to benefit from increased Arab oil production.

Federal officials have admitted some Arab oil was being leaked to the United States.

As late as Thursday afternoon, however, four hours after Uhle's report but apparently before it made its way through official channels, John C. Sawhill, deputy administrator of the Federal Energy Office said there was no reason to expect any change from present oil import levels until the embargo is lifted.

Uhle reported, however, that the advisory subcommittee expected imports to increase in February and March. First-quarter petroleum imports, he estimated, would average about 5.5 million barrels a day, some 300,000 higher than last week's level.

Rationing Need Seen

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Charles E. Spahr, chairman of the Standard Oil Co. (Ohio), says gasoline rationing "looks more and more like a near term necessity."

Speaking at the City Club Forum Friday, Spahr said the nation needs an energy policy "that will stimulate development" of oil and gas resources. He added that the nation "badly needs wise and enlightened direction from the federal government, not more of what we have had in the past."

He said the current energy crunch is "the result of an eroding process that was visible 20 years ago."

"Through legislation and regulation the entire energy industry was slowly strangled," he added.

See Full Employment At Delco Division

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Full employment at the General Motors Corp.'s Delco Division was expected by late Sunday as more truckers returned to work.

Some 2,200 workers were called back to work Friday after the company said it received some shipments of goods.

Another round of requests for pay increases hit Circleville city council. All were received with quiet consideration, but also with a take-it-easy attitude on the part of the city fathers.

A request for a flat $20-a-month pay hike was presented by the seven members of the police department. The seven members of the fire department asked for a flat $17.50-a-month increase. And council tried again to consider increases for 14 employee classifications at Berger Hospital.

Circleville city council threatened to file an injunction to halt the state liquor control board's hearing against the city, claiming the state was "trying to steamroller the investigation."

Several Pickaway County banking officials were expected to attend the annual Lincoln's Birthday meeting of the Ohio Bankers Association in Columbus.

Circleville American Legion Post officially changed its name from the former Howard Hall Post to the Hall-Adkins Post.

Larry Best, county agent, told Pickaway County farmers to check their insurance programs, due to increasing risks in farming.

Early Tax Filing Pushed By Kosydar

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Tax Commissioner Robert J. Kosydar reminded Friday that early filing of tax returns means early refunds.

Kosydar said Ohioans are slower this year to file their state income tax returns. He said some 800,000 returns have been received, or about 100,000 fewer than had been filed at this same time last year.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Few more painful conditions exist than trigeminal neuralgia, or tic douloureux. Sudden sharp, stabbing and intense pain occurs over the face and forehead. Often the exact cause is unknown. Numerous types of treatment are effectively tried.

Now a group of doctors at the University of Belfast in Ireland has been able to trace the cause of this condition to changes in the jaw joint.

Dr. G. S. Blair and Dr. D. S. Gordon have concentrated their attention on malocclusion, or bad bite of the teeth, which reflects itself in problems of the jaw joint. They emphasize that all people suffering the intense pain of trigeminal neuralgia should NOT rule out a dental problem as a possible cause.

An inability to digest lactose deprives some people of the nutritional values of milk.

Dr. J.R. Jacin, of Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N.J., is working on a commercially feasible process to remove lactose from milk. The technique, one of many that have been tried, will be of great value to the many people who are not able to digest milk properly.

The social implications of modern medicine are expanding to encompass special needs.

Dr. Clorinda Margolis, at Thomas Jefferson University in Philadelphia, heads a team of psychiatrists, psychologists, social workers and parole agents in an effort to rehabilitate former prisoners and integrate them into society.

All aspects of the individual and the community are studied to contribute effectively to the solution of this important need.

SPEAKING OF YOU HEALTH . . . Eyes must be protected from the intense rays of the sun on the ski slopes. Safety glasses with either plastic or heat-treated lenses are an excellent investment in safety.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — There may be a house in your immediate future, after all. It didn't look that way just a matter of weeks ago, when builders and lenders were looking into what seemed to be a bottomless pit.

It isn't that the outlook has improved very much.

But the trends in savings which generally forecast an upturn in housing now seem to be developing. That is, the savings dollar is pouring back into the thrift institutions, which provide most home mortgages.

About one year ago the savings and loan associations and mutual savings banks began losing money to Treasury and industry securities and to big bank certificates of deposit that provided higher yields.

The money continued to pour out right through the summer. But by fall the flow was reversed.

When that happens the thrifts begin to get back into business. Once again they have money to put into home mortgages, which is their primary investment.

Demo Director Hopes For Post Under Gilligan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — David A. Meeker says he hopes to get a position with the state administration after leaving his post as executive director of the Ohio Democratic party.

Meeker announced Friday that he was resigning, effective March 1. He said it was for personal reasons.

He said he had made no decision on his future plans, "but I am anxious to spend more time with my family and pursue some other areas of interest."

"I have asked Gov. John Gilligan to consider me for a position within his administration, and I hope to discuss the matter with him later," he said, adding "I also plan to consider some professional opportunities in the private sector."

Lemon Yellow Fire Trucks Set

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP)—Fire Chief Larry Rose said lemon yellow will replace traditional red for fire equipment here and elsewhere in the future.

He said all new equipment will be painted yellow and some of the older trucks will also be changed. He said motorists are better able to see yellow than red.

"Some firemen have been killed on the way to fires when their trucks were struck by automobiles driven by people who have failed to see the fire truck," he said.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

Recently the Jaycees held their DSA Banquet. Our church group was privileged to serve the meal. We appreciate this opportunity as it will enable us to afford some projects that might not otherwise have been possible.

We also have a special THANKS to the girls of Circleville High School SOS and FSA organizations who helped serve. Without their assistance it would have been an almost impossible task for our small group. Truly it is a delight to see a group of cheerful, well-mannered, young ladies who are willing to give their services helping others.

Our grateful appreciation to all who made our participation in the Jaycee Banquet a possibility.

"You were also that extremely rare breed of doctor who did everything possible to prevent the patient's having an operation you considered unnecessary. Remember the crazy time a surgeon and you had an argument at the foot of Bob's bed? The other doctor insisted that he be rushed to the hospital immediately for an appendectomy. You said that all he needed was a high colonic. Well, he still has his appendix 20 years later.

"Then there was the time I went to another doctor for a pain in my hip. You were in Israel at the time, as a consultant to their hospital system. Anyway, the doctor took X-rays and told me I needed an operation on my hip. I waited until you returned.

You took your own X-rays and cleared up the trouble with one shot of something or other. You were the rare kind who really cares about his patients, and helps with the psychological as well as the physical problems that arise in a family. As you forcibly retire, take comfort from the fact that over the long years you did your very best, far beyond the call of duty, and that you were deeply appreciated.

"It's sad that doctors like you and pharmacists like my dad was are but fading memories of a gentler, happier, more trusting past. I was brought up in my dad's drugstore. I remember people coming to him to have something taken out of their eyes, or for a pill to alleviate pain, or for a suggestion as to what medicine to take for a particular ailment. Maybe it wasn't cricket, even in those far gone days. But Dad never let anybody down.

"Can you imagine very many druggists doing that today? Not long ago a big foreign particle flew into my eye as I was walking down the street and I instinctively went into the nearest drugstore. The druggist only laughed when I asked if he could see the particle, and sent me to an eye doctor in the next block. Would you believe I had to give the nurse or

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government has been told that the impact of the Arab oil embargo may be less severe than had been expected.

And, a semiadvisory group reported Thursday, oil imports may actually increase in February and March.

For the first quarter of 1974, the group said, the United States may face an 11 per cent oil shortage instead of the 14 per cent predicted only last December.

The report was made to the Emergency Petroleum Supply Committee — an oil industry advisory group with a government official as its chairman — by one of its subcommittees.

Walter Uhle, a retired Caltex vice president who presented the subcommittee report, said the Arab oil embargo was most severe in December, before the Arab nations began relaxing their oil cut-off to all but a few nations considered friendly to Israel.

"The relaxation has improved the situation, essentially, outside the United States," Uhle said.

For the first quarter of this year, he said, Europe can expect a five per cent oil shortage instead of the 18 per cent predicted in December; Japan and South Korea may be 10 per cent short instead of 15 to 25 per cent; and the "free world" shortage should be about 7 per cent instead of 13 per cent.

Uhle said the new first quarter estimates assume that the Arabs will continue their embargo against the United States, the Netherlands, Portugal and South Africa.

Even so, the United States was expected to benefit from increased Arab oil production.

Federal officials have admitted some Arab oil was being leaked to the United States.

As late as Thursday afternoon, however, four hours after Uhle's report but apparently before it made its way through official channels, John C. Sawhill, deputy administrator of the Federal Energy Office said there was no reason to expect any change from present oil import levels until the embargo is lifted.

Uhle reported, however, that the advisory subcommittee expected imports to increase in February and March. First-quarter petroleum imports, he estimated, would average about 5.5 million barrels a day, some 300,000 higher than last week's level.

"We love you, Dr. Lucas."

Speaking at the City Club Forum Friday, Spahr said the nation needs an energy policy "that will stimulate development" of oil and gas resources. He added that the nation "badly needs wise and enlightened direction from the federal government, not more of what we have had in the past."

He said the current energy crunch is "the result of an eroding process that was visible 20 years ago."

"Through legislation and regulation the entire energy industry was slowly strangled," he added.

Rationing Need Seen

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Charles E. Spahr, chairman of the Standard Oil Co. (Ohio), says gasoline rationing "looks more and more like a near term necessity."

See Full Employment At Delco Division

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Full employment at the General Motors Corp.'s Delco Division was expected by late Sunday as more truckers returned to work.

Some 2,200 workers were called back to work Friday after the company said it received some shipments of goods.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Saturday, Feb. 9, the 40th day of 1974. There are 325 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1718, French colonists arrived in Louisiana.

On this date:

In 1773, the ninth American president, William Henry Harrison, was born in Charles City County, Va. In 1825, the U.S. House of Representatives elected John Quincy Adams U.S. President after an election in which none of the candidates received an electoral majority.

In 1870, the U.S. Weather Bureau was established.

In 1942, the former French liner, "Normandy," burned and capsized at a New York pier as it was being outfitted as a troop transport.

In 1943, the Pacific war battle for Guadalcanal ended in an American victory.

In 1971, an earthquake in the Los Angeles area of California killed at least 64 persons.

Ten years ago...U.N. Secretary-General U Thant made an urgent appeal to Ethiopia and Somalia to end hostilities in which hundreds were reported slain.

Five years ago...trawlers from Soviet-bloc nations stood 15 miles off the coast of Virginia under watch of two U.S. Coast Guard cutters after being warned to stay outside a 12-mile fishing limit.

One year ago...Britain and France formally recognized East Germany.

Another round of requests for pay increases hit Circleville city council. All were received with quiet consideration, but also with a take-it-easy attitude on the part of the city fathers.

A request for a flat $20-a-month pay hike was presented by the seven members of the police department. The seven members of the fire department asked for a flat $17.50-a-month increase. And council tried again to consider increases for 14 employe classifications at Berger Hospital.

Circleville city council threatened to file an injunction to halt the state liquor control board's hearing against the city, claiming the state was "trying to steamroller the investigation."

Several Pickaway County banking officials were expected to attend the annual Lincoln's Birthday meeting of the Ohio Bankers Association in Columbus.

Circleville American Legion Post officially changed its name from the former Howard Hall Post to the Hall-Adkins Post.

Larry Best, county agent, told Pickaway County farmers to check their insurance programs, due to increasing risks in farming.

Early Tax Filing Pushed By Kosydar

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Tax Commissioner Robert J. Kosydar reminded Friday that early filing of tax returns means early refunds.

Kosydar said Ohioans are slower this year to file their state income tax returns. He said some 800,000 returns have been received, or about 100,000 fewer than had been filed at this same time last year.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Few more painful conditions exist than trigeminal neuralgia, or tic douloureux. Sudden sharp, stabbing and intense pain occurs over the face and forehead. Often the exact cause is unknown. Numerous types of treatment are effectively tried.

Now a group of doctors at the University of Belfast in Ireland has been able to trace the cause of this condition to changes in the jaw joint.

Dr. G. S. Blair and Dr. D. S. Gordon have concentrated their attention on malocclusion, or bad bite of the teeth, which reflects itself in problems of the jaw joint. They emphasize that all people suffering the intense pain of trigeminal neuralgia should NOT rule out a dental problem as a possible cause.

An inability to digest lactose deprives some people of the nutritional values of milk.

Dr. J.R. Jacin, of Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N.J., is working on a commercially feasible process to remove lactose from milk. The technique, one of many that have been tried, will be of great value to the many people who are not able to digest milk properly.

The social implications of modern medicine are expanding to encompass special needs.

Dr. Clorinda Margolis, at Thomas Jefferson University in Philadelphia, heads a team of psychiatrists, psychologists, social workers and parole agents in an effort to rehabilitate former prisoners and integrate them into society.

All aspects of the individual and the community are studied to contribute effectively to the solution of this important need.

Business World

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — There may be a house in your immediate future, after all. It didn't look that way just a matter of weeks ago, when builders and lenders were looking into what seemed to be a bottomless pit.

It isn't that the outlook has improved very much.

But the trends in savings which generally forecast an upturn in housing now seem to be developing. That is, the savings dollar is pouring back into the thrift institutions, which provide most home mortgages.

About one year ago the savings and loan associations and mutual savings banks began losing money to Treasury and industry securities and to big bank certificates of deposit that provided higher yields.

The money continued to pour out right through the summer. But by fall the flow was reversed.

When that happens the thrifths begin to get back into business. Once again they have money to put into home mortgages, which is their primary in-

Demo Director Hopes For Post Under Gilligan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — David A. Meeker says he hopes to get a position with the state administration after leaving his post as executive director of the Ohio Democratic party.

Meeker announced Friday that he was resigning, effective March 1. He said it was for personal reasons.

He said he had made no decision on his future plans, "but I am anxious to spend more time with my family and pursue some other areas of interest."

"I have asked Gov. John Gilligan to consider me for a position within his administration, and I hope to discuss the matter with him later," he said, adding "I also plan to consider some professional opportunities in the private sector."

Lemon Yellow Fire Trucks Set

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP)—Fire Chief Larry Rose said lemon yellow will replace traditional red for fire equipment here and elsewhere in the future.

He said all new equipment will be painted yellow and some of the older trucks will also be changed. He said motorists are better able to see yellow than red.

"Some firemen have been killed on the way to fires when their trucks were struck by automobiles driven by people who have failed to see the fire truck," he said.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

Recently the Jaycees held their DSA Banquet. Our church group was privileged to serve the meal. We appreciate this opportunity as it will enable us to afford some projects that might not otherwise have been possible.

We also have a special THANKS to the girls of Circleville High School SOS and FSA organizations who helped serve. Without their assistance it would have been an almost impossible task for our small group. Truly it is a delight to see a group of cheerful, well-mannered, young ladies who are willing to give their services helping others.

Our grateful appreciation to all who made our participation in the Jaycee Banquet a possibility.

Sincerely,

Suppose a political activist buys one share of stock in a corporation that makes guns. His purpose is to gain access to a list of shareholders, so he can arouse their opposition to the company's products.

Would the company have to let him see the books?

Most courts faced with this question have said no. True, every stockholder is a co-owner of the corporation. However, say these courts, the relationship is strictly economic, not political. To see the books he must have an economic motive. He must be acting, at least in part, to protect his investment.

The activist shareholder is new but the problem is old: how open should a corporation's books be? Clearly, there has to be some sort of limitation on access. As one judge explained, in barring a stockholder who was "just curious":

"Considering the huge size of many modern corporations and the complicated nature of their bookkeeping, to permit their thousands of stockholders to roam at will through their records would render impossible not only any attempt to keep their records efficiently but the proper carrying on of their businesses."

On the other hand, a stockholder with a legitimate economic motive generally cannot be prevented from seeing the books merely because the management doesn't happen to like him.

One stockholder was refused access to his company's books because he was considered a "troublemaker." He was indeed a troublemaker. But the trouble he wanted to make was getting rid of the management, which he thought was doing a bad job of running the business.

In these circumstances, a court ordered the company to open the books for his inspection. The court said that for a disgruntled investor, throwing the management out was a natural and proper objective.

Coal Company Pays State For Fish Kill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — B&N Coal, Inc., of Dexter City paid $3,022 to the state for a fish kill in the East Fork of Duck Creek in Noble County in September 1971, the Ohio Department of Natural Resources said Friday.

William Nye, department director, said a $10,000 lawsuit against the firm was dropped after the payment.

The firm had been accused of killing 32,678 fish when it allowed acid water from its strip mine reclamation operations to pollute the stream, Nye said.

News Of Interest To Women

The Circleville Herald, Saturday February 9, 1974

Ashville Junior Women Told About Unique School

Ashville Junior Women's Club met recently at the home of Jody Hettinger. Guest speaker for the evening was Dave Stanley from the Annehurst Elementary School in Westerville. Slides were presented on the school and an interesting talk was given.

This school is unique from the structure of the building to the way in which it operates. The building has six diamond-shaped areas; five on the outside and one diamond area in the middle. Three of the outer diamonds are instruction areas with six classes going on in each area. These classes are not divided by walls and most of the classes are combined such as first and second grades, third and fourth grades, etc.

The school is using the idea of the one-room school house where the older children can help the younger children. The school is carpeted and the children work quite frequently on the floor and also are free to remove their shoes. There is no permanent seating arrangement and the students move around from class to class.

They also have the freedom of study whatever they would like for that day and also to choose any subject to study even though it may be above their grade level, such as chemistry. The teacher will teach the students a few basics on the subject preferred. Each child is prescribed a lesson plan and he can advance at his own speed and not wait for the rest of his class.

Cheating among the students is not really discouraged. For one reason if the student is interested enough to go to another student for an answer or help on his work, the teacher feels that this is beneficiary.

After questions were asked of the speaker, the club held a business meeting. Discussed were many new projects, but no plans were finalized until the next meeting when more facts are known. The club does hope to get started on a project to furnish the school children with some sort of reflective device so that they can be seen when walking to school.

Refreshments were served by co-hostesses Jane Kline and Maureen Neff. The next meeting will be held at the home of Debbie Forquer, 8 p.m., Feb. 25th.

Loyal Daughters Class To Observe Birthdays

Birthday observances were discussed during the Tuesday evening meeting of Loyal Daughters Class of Good Shepherd United Methodist Church in the Service Center.

Mrs. Carl Wilson presided and opened the meeting with a reading and a prayer. Several special nights will be observed throughout the year with birthday parties in March and November. Those having birthdays during the last half of the year will entertain those having birthdays January through June at the March meeting. Those having birthdays during July through December will be entertained by those having birthdays during the first half of the year at the November meeting.

Bess Simison was recognized for having a birthday on the day of the meeting by members singing "Happy Birthday." She responded with remarks of appreciation for the church and class during the many years in which she has been a member.

Mrs. Clydus Leist and Mrs. Austin Hurley served as the program committee. Mrs. Hurley conducted devotions reading Romans 13 and using that as the basis for her remarks. Members sang "Trust And Obey" and Mrs. Hurley closed devotions with prayer.

Mrs. Leist conducted three humorous contests won by Mrs. George Ankrom. Mrs. Hurley was the first to discover "the thing which was not needed" during the final contest and Mrs. Loring Valentine won the door prize.

Refreshments were served by hostesses, Mrs. Simison, Mrs. Porter Martin and Miss Maggie Mavis.

By EILEEN EASTERDAY, PHONE 986-3481

Well, Susie Wire-haired Terrier Thompson has given birth to another litter of puppies and her owners Marvie Baby and Dolly Thompson are offering them free to good homes. There were only two so if interested I suggest you phone 986-5863 immediately.

So many of our fine upstanding citizens are or have been hospitalized the past few weeks. Charley Lawson has been discharged from Berger Hospital where he was a patient for several days and underwent a number of tests and observations according to his Jaunita.

A chat with Arthur Frazier's daughter Helen Shoemaker revealed that he had been transferred from Berger to Mt. Carmel Hospital where he underwent surgery. Frazier was released to his home last Thursday (week ago) and is recuperating quite nicely, we are pleased to hear. Helen and her husband Ray are here from Angola, Ind.

We were very much distressed to learn of a fall in her home and the resultant injuries suffered by Dorothy (Mrs. Smith) Hulse. If wishes are ever granted then she will be fully recovered in the blink of an eye.

Mr. Ansel Driesbach and Mr. Thurman Betts continue to be patients at Berger and for those who have not sent cards to our "shut-ins" please do so Now..

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mansfield of Oakwood, former parishioners of our Rev. Richard and Marybelle Crosby, attended services Sunday morning at the Williamsport United Methodist Church and were guests for the day of the Crosbys. The Rev. Richard, by the way, has been delivering some mighty interesting and thought provoking sermons from the pulpit each Sunday. It is encouraging to note the attendance has been steadily increasing.

Becki, otherwise known as Birfy, Easterday overnighted with her grandmother Mrs. Earl Hardman of Chillicothe on Friday. She returned home Saturday afternoon but due to a very painful "planters wart" on the bottom of her right foot she was unable to join Mrs. Dorothy Phelps (Wardell Party Home proprietress) and other employees for a night out at the Kahiki — a rather elegant type busman's holiday. Those who did go besides Dorothy were Jennifer Clark, Norma Elliott, Bonnie Salyers, Betty Tootle, Debbie Norris, and Bertha Hinton.

It was our pleasure to have Walter and Opal Easterday of Waverly come "a-calling" Saturday evening. Walter has that special talent of making homemade head cheese and liver pudding that just cannot be surpassed and he shared with us some he had just recently made. What a treat! Probably only those of the "olden days" will understand what I am writing about.

On Sunday evening Poppy Bill's mother and sister, Mrs. Frances Easterday and Edna Easterday of Chillicothe pleased us with a visit and also stayed for Sunday supper.

Both sets of visitors enjoyed making the acquaintance of our pretty foster daughter Celia de Carvalho from Campinas, Brazil.

On Sunday afternoon Celia and Mum Easterday (that's me) drove over Logan Elm way to the Carl and Nancy Reichelderfer home and had the joy of meeting their captivating foster daughter Leticia Flora Rodrigues Brasileiro from Salvador, Brazil. Leticia will add her special sunshine to the Reichelderfer home for approximately six months.

Also joining all of us for the afternoon was gregarious Cipriano Marco of near Buenos Aires, Argentina who is with the Raymond Reichelderfer family of Logan Elm district. "Cipie baby" exudes that special charm attributed so often to South American males which earns them the "Latin Lover" nickname. Cipie reminded me a great deal of "Anky" who was here last spring for a few days when several AFS students attended Westfall. How many remember?

While we were shopping last weekend our Celia was so happy to have Mrs. John Corcoran introduce herself. Mrs. C. and her husband lived for seven years in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil so she could converse with Celia in the native Portuguese language. Mrs. C. was at the market with her mother-in-law, Mrs. Fred Corcoran with whom the John Corcorans spent the weekend. They now reside in Chesterton, Ind. which is only a few miles from Chicago.

Hey, you fellow employees of Poppy Bill's at Dupont, please do not dispute his word on what the window shades cost — he is right. Keep in mind that our windows are extra wide and longer than the norm. And you pay "dear" for that as he can attest since he pays the freight around here.

The L-K bowling team on the Tuesday a.m. Morning Glories league continues on top with Lawson's team hanging in there for a tie. See, Millie, you can't intimidate me by telling me not to tell that we won all three games over the E.R. Bennett team this past week. Now, for that bit of gloating we will more than likely get trumped this coming Tuesday.

Bridal Shower

Starting off a busy month for Janet Schleich, bride elect of Wayne Wright, was a miscellaneous shower given by her bridal attendants, Mrs. Clark McFarland III, Misses Cindy, Kathy, Laura Schleich, Susan Wright, and Teresa Graffis at whose home the shower was held Sunday afternoon. The gifts were placed under an umbrella which was prettily decorated with white streamers.

Appropriate games were played with prize winners Karen Fausnaugh, Kathy Schleich, Kim Long and Marsha Hoffman presenting their winnings to Janet.

The honored guests received gifts from Mrs. Don (Ruth) Schleich (mama), Mrs. Warren (Norma) Wright (mama), Mrs. John (Sue) Graffis, Rhonda Furniss, Melanie Bliss, Miss Fausnaugh, Miss Hoffman, Linda Rihley, Mrs. Bill (Linda Fausnaugh) Blue, Miss Long, Elaine Clark and Nanisa Anderson who all attended the shower; Jill Long, Connie Shaeffer, Ann Straley, Judy Schein, Cheryl Miller, Mrs. Rick (Bev McDill) Hanley, Denise Schwartz and Christy Hanson who were unable to attend.

Refreshments of pink lemonade, brownies, nuts and mints were served.

For the many friends of Mrs. Phoebe Smiley who are interested in her "doings," you will be happy to hear she is getting along just fine according to her daughter Ruth Shippe with whom she is now making her home in Macon, Ga.

A letter today states they are both fine but as puzzled over the shenanigans of our weather as we are. During the writing of the letter the sun

News Of Interest To Women

The Circleville Herald, Saturday February 9, 1974

Ashville Junior Women Told About Unique School

Ashville Junior Women's Club met recently at the home of Jody Hettinger. Guest speaker for the evening was Dave Stanley from the Annehurst Elementary School in Westerville. Slides were presented on the school and an interesting talk was given.

This school is unique from the structure of the building to the way in which it operates. The building has six diamond-shaped areas; five on the outside and one diamond area in the middle. Three of the outer diamonds are instruction areas with six classes going on in each area. These classes are not divided by walls and most of the classes are combined such as first and second grades, third and fourth grades, etc.

The school is using the idea of the one-room school house where the older children can help the younger children. The school is carpeted and the children work quite frequently on the floor and also are free to remove their shoes. There is no permanent seating arrangement and the students move around from class to class. They also have the freedom of study whatever they would like for that day and also to choose any subject to study even though it may be above their grade level, such as chemistry. The teacher will teach the students a few basics on the subject preferred. Each child is prescribed a lesson plan and he can advance at his own speed and not wait for the rest of his class.

Cheating among the students is not really discouraged. For one reason if the student is interested enough to go to another student for an answer or help on his work, the teacher feels that this is beneficiary.

After questions were asked of the speaker, the club held a business meeting. Discussed were many new projects, but no plans were finalized until the next meeting when more facts are known. The club does hope to get started on a project to furnish the school children with some sort of reflective device so that they can be seen when walking to school.

Refreshments were served by co-hostesses Jane Kline and Maureen Neff. The next meeting will be held at the home of Debbie Forquer, 8 p.m., Feb. 25th.

Loyal Daughters Class To Observe Birthdays

Birthday observances were discussed during the Tuesday evening meeting of Loyal Daughters Class of Good Shepherd United Methodist Church in the Service Center.

Mrs. Carl Wilson presided and opened the meeting with a reading and a prayer. Several special nights will be observed throughout the year with birthday parties in March and November. Those having birthdays during the last half of the year will entertain those having birthdays January through June at the March meeting. Those having birthdays during July through December will be entertained by those having birthdays during the first half of the year at the November meeting.

Bess Simson was recognized for having a birthday on the day of the meeting by members singing "Happy Birthday." She responded with remarks of appreciation for the church and class during the many years in which she has been a member.

Mrs. Clydus Leist and Mrs. Austin Hurley served as the program committee. Mrs. Hurley conducted devotions reading Romans 13 and using that as the basis for her remarks. Members sang "Trust And Obey" and Mrs. Hurley closed devotions with prayer.

Mrs. Leist conducted three humorous contests won by Mrs. George Ankrom. Mrs. Hurley was the first to discover "the thing which was not needed" during the final contest and Mrs. Loring Valentine won the door prize.

Refreshments were served by hostesses, Mrs. Simson, Mrs. Porter Martin and Miss Maggie Mavis.

Tigers Dash Miami Trace's Title Hopes

TOP TWO—Circleville's top two scorers in last night's South Central Ohio League action are caught in this picture. Harold Reed goes up for a shot while Kris Kline moves into position for a rebound. Kline scored 17 points and Reed 16.

Circleville dashed Miami Trace's title hopes Friday handing the Panthers a 58-52 defeat in their own bailiwick.

With the win, Circleville's record is seven wins and four losses in the South Central Ohio League and 11-5 overall. Miami Trace, tied for the league lead with Washington C. H. prior to the tilt, dropped to second with an 8-2 league record and a 10-6 overall mark.

Meanwhile, Washington C. H. was winning handily over Wilmington, 101-59, to improve its standing to 9-1 in the SCOL and 13-3 in all outings. The Tigers are in third place in the league standings.

A hot fourth quarter balanced scoring and a slight rebounding edge helped the Red and Black to the victory.

Three Tigers were in double figures, led by Kris Kline who hooped eight of 15 field goal tries and one of two at the charity stripe for 17 markers. Harold Reed made seven of 14 from the field and two of three at the foul line for 16 points. Robin Martin netted five of 10 field goal tries and added four of five at the line for 14 points.

Rounding out the scoring for Circleville, Perry Hoskins had eight points, John Ankrom two and Doug Radabaugh one.

Circleville made 25 of 52 shots from the field for a 48 per cent accuracy rate. At the foul line the Tigers canned eight of 16 shots, a 50 per cent average.

The Red and Black outrebounded the Panthers, 32-26. Kline was the big man on the boards for Circleville, hauling in 12 missed shots while Reed grabbed nine.

Dave Persinger, the 6-foot-5 center for Trace, was the big gun for the losers with 15 points on five buckets from the field and five at the foul line. Jeff King scored 13 points, Randy Reiber 11, Dave Steinhauer nine, Steve Mowery and Jay Mossbarger two each.

The Trace cagers netted 19 of 56 tries from the field, a 34 per cent average, and converted 14 of 21 foul shots, a 67 per cent average.

Circleville had 18 turnovers in the game compared to 10 for Miami Trace.

The hosts scored first in the game and led at the end of the first quarter 14-12. But Circleville came back in the second period to take a 31-27 edge to the locker room at halftime.

In the third quarter the Tracers went back on top 44-41. But then Circleville got a hot hand for 14 straight points while holding the Panthers scoreless for over six minutes.

Tonight Circleville hosts Hillsboro in league action.

Tigers Dash Miami Trace's Title Hopes

TOP TWO—Circleville's top two scorers in last night's South Central Ohio League action are caught in this picture. Harold Reed goes up for a shot while Kris Kline moves into position for a rebound. Kline scored 17 points and Reed 16.

Circleville dashed Miami Trace's title hopes Friday handing the Panthers a 58-52 defeat in their own balliwick.

With the win, Circleville's record is seven wins and four losses in the South Central Ohio League and 11-5 overall. Miami Trace, tied for the league lead with Washington C. H. prior to the tilt, dropped to second with an 8-2 loop record and a 10-6 overall mark.

Meanwhile, Washington C. H. was winning handily over Wilmington, 101-59, to improve its standing to 9-1 in the SCOL and 13-3 in all outings. The Tigers are in third place in the league standings.

A hot fourth quarter balanced scoring and a slight rebounding edge helped the Red and Black to the victory.

Three Tigers were in double figures, led by Kris Kline who hooped eight of 15 field goal tries and one of two at the charity stripe for 17 markers. Harold Reed made seven of 14 from the field and two of three at the foul line for 16 points. Robin Martin netted five of 10 field goal tries and added four of five at the line for 14 points.

The Mustangs were behind 15-8 at the end of the initial eight minutes of play but battled back to take a 26-25 halftime edge.

They were outscored 20-14 in the third period as the Pioneers went ahead 45-40 going into the fourth quarter.

The Mustangs made 24 of 71 shots from the field, a 34 per cent average, and six of 12 at the charity stripe, a 50 per cent average.

Zane Trace made 25 of 58 field goal attempts, a 43 per cent shooting average, and 15 of 21 at the foul line, a 71 per cent average. Zane Trace had 16 turnovers and Westfall threw the ball away eight times.

Zane Trace won the battle of the boards, pulling down 43 rebounds to 38 for the Mustangs. Tim Whitten had 17 rebounds for the Pioneers. Joe Angles led the Mustangs with 14 rebounds.

Angles was also the leading scorer for Westfall with 11 points. Jay Clark tallied 10, Tony Mosley and Jeff Karshner eight each, Bill Hamman and Tim Brigner six each and Dave Shannon five.

For Zane Trace Jeff Wright scored 18, Tim Whitten 16, Mike Miller 11 and Charles Thurston 10.

The Mustangs have a 3-12 record

Frericks 2nd In Shot At OSU Meet

Circleville High School graduate Tom Frericks heaved the 16 pound shot 50 feet 9½ inches Friday placing second in the triangular indoor track meet at Ohio State's French Field House.

Frericks is attending Notre Dame University on a football grant and is throwing the shot for the indoor track team. He is a freshman. Notre Dame finished first, second and fourth in the shot.

Ohio State won the meet with 71 points, Notre Dame scored 49 and East Carolina 41.

Pacers Lose To Weather In New York

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was the Indiana Pacers vs. the weather Friday.

The result was strictly no contest, either on or off the court, with the Pacers straggling into Nassau Coliseum after their game with the New York Nets had been postponed because of the weather.

The defending American Basketball Association champs first spent 30 minutes flying around New York's LaGuardia Airport before being rerouted to Newark, N.J.

Then the 18-man traveling party, including writers and broadcasters, turned what is usually a 2½-hour trip to the stadium into a six-hour trek through the ice and snow.

In fact, Pacers Mel Daniels, Billie Keller, Freddie Lewis and George McGinnis spent most of the evening at a state police post after their car became stalled on the way to the arena.

In ABA games that were played, Virginia trounced Memphis 115-106, San Diego beat San Antonio 120-105 and Kentucky edged Denver 106-105.

The Pacers may also feel a chill in their wallets. The ABA requires a team to take the earliest possible transportation for a road game or face a possible $5,000 fine. Indiana had a day off Thursday and passed up an early flight to New York.

Air Force freshman tight end Joe Moss of Cherry Hill, N.J., is the son of Joe Moss, an Air Force defensive football coach in the 1960s.

overall and are 0-5 in the SVC.

The Westfall reserves won the preliminary game, 57-40 with Chris Riddle scoring 15 points and Randy Hildenbrand 12.

Celtics Rip N.Y. Knicks; Win 125-97

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's the New York Knicks and the Boston Celtics—one of the most exciting rivalries in the National Basketball Association. Or is it one of the most boring?

"We have some close games," said New York Coach Red Holtzman, but Friday night wasn't one of them as the Celtics trounced the Knicks 125-97.

These old playoff rivals were rarely more mismatched than Friday night, as Jo Jo White had 30 points and Don Nelson 18 points and 10 rebounds.

"Nelson was unreal," said Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn. "The last three games, we've been playing like we did at the start of the season. Everybody's running."

Boston's victory improved the Celtics' first-place margin over New York in the NBA Atlantic Division to seven games.

Elsewhere in the NBA, the Buffalo Braves beat the Chicago Bulls 106-101; the Philadelphia 76ers trimmed the Atlanta Hawks 104-84; the Milwaukee Bucks stopped the Capital Bullets 105-96; the Houston Rockets ripped the Cleveland Cavaliers 120-106; the Kansas City-Omaha Kings defeated the Portland Trail Blazers 104-99 and the Detroit Pistons beat the Phoenix Suns 99-94.

Deal Stands, Brown Declares

CINCINNATI (AP)—Cincinnati Bengals Coach Paul Brown said the San Diego Chargers can't have quarterback Wayne Clark back because Virgil Carter signed with Chicago Fire of the rival World Football League.

He said, holding up the contract, there were "no conditions" in the swap of the two quarterbacks during Super Bowl week. In addition, both clubs were fined by National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle for announcing the trade before Jan. 31.

The Chargers asked Rozelle to nullify the deal claiming Carter's inability to pass their physical is the reason.

Winter remains locked in across Ohio. Highs Friday ranged from 19 in Findlay to 28 in Columbus and Cincinnati. Southeast portions of the state near West Virginia got up to five inches of snow.

Before dawn, readings ranged from five to ten in the north to the 20s south. Little change in Ohio's weather pattern seems likely before next week. No major weather systems are headed for the state and Ohio can expect occasional light snow or flurries this weekend with highs climbing into the 20s.

Blame Watergate On Male Attitudes

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — Feminist Isabell Arnold said here Friday the Watergate scandal might never have erupted if men had adopted some of the attributes of women.

"In general, the world is suffering from male violence and aggression than anything else," she said. If men could adopt the traditional women's roles of preservation and protection, society would gain, she said.

Ms. Arnold, who uses that title as her preference, spoke at the second annual Women's Political and Cultural Festival and Wilmington College. She is associated with the Valley Women's Center of North Hampton, Mass.

Your Horoscope Television Schedule

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Do not fall for tricky, dubious schemes. Fight them sturdily, knowing that only good effort prevails in the final analysis. Avoid impulsiveness, too.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Excellent planetary influences. Fervor and ardent ambition should mark the day. Especially favored: Artistic pursuits, domestic concerns, romance.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Be on guard now. There are situations and people who would detour you from your proper route. This is the type of day that sends day dreamers off on unprofitable tangents.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Whatever assistance is offered, if truly practical, accept readily, proffering your aid in return. Every well-meant deed chalks up a bigger plus.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Personal interests may need some reviewing and some changes now, perhaps gradually in some areas, quickly in others. Better than average opportunities: Look about.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Wait for cues before launching any project. The activity-happy person can get himself into difficult situations and complications if not on guard.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): You may overreach your mark now because of anxiety or miscalculation. Try to avoid this by taking things in stride and following routine at an easy pace.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Don't enter activities in which you are not particularly interested just because someone else wants to. Neither be too aggressive nor too timid: There's always that "middle road."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Contribute to mutual understanding between differing parties. Pursue a sound purpose, not merely an expedient one. Show your competence in complex situations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You can gain more through intelligent action and commendable plans than you may think at first. Look hard for the avenue leading to highest attainment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Indicated now: several revitalizing hours which you can use to excellent advantage; impressive developments by which you can profit.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Pick up tempo if it will not push your schedule beyond the reasonable; don't delay in matters which should be done NOW, however. You will find assistance when needed.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with tremendous energy, stamina and a desire for achievement. You may tend to overdo, scatter energies, thus giving an erroneous picture of yourself. You are never satisfied with the mediocre; are practical, imaginative and gregarious of nature. You see opportunities where others pass them by and your ambition knows no bounds. Have recourse to music, any of the arts and outdoor sports as refreshing hobbies. Birthdate of: Charles Lamb, poet, essayist, critic.

GOLDEN GIRL—Miss Lorna Arango shows her 1-pound 14-karat gold necklace. When the U.S. went off the gold standard, she went on it. She works in the oil industry.

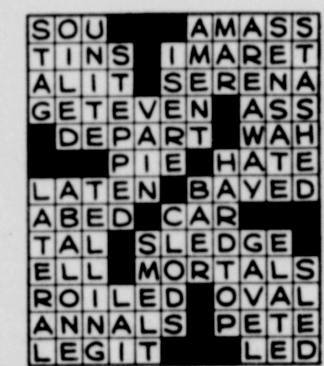

Last Attraction

TORONTO (AP) — While the Yonge Street Mall has been dismantled after the summer, one attraction remains. On one corner sits Joe Smolij, a speed chess expert. He'll play anyone in two, three or four minutes and probably win. During the games he recites tales of his wide travels throughout the world.

Slimming In Hounslow

LONDON (AP) — Free slimming centers are being opened by the borough council of Hounslow, a London suburb.

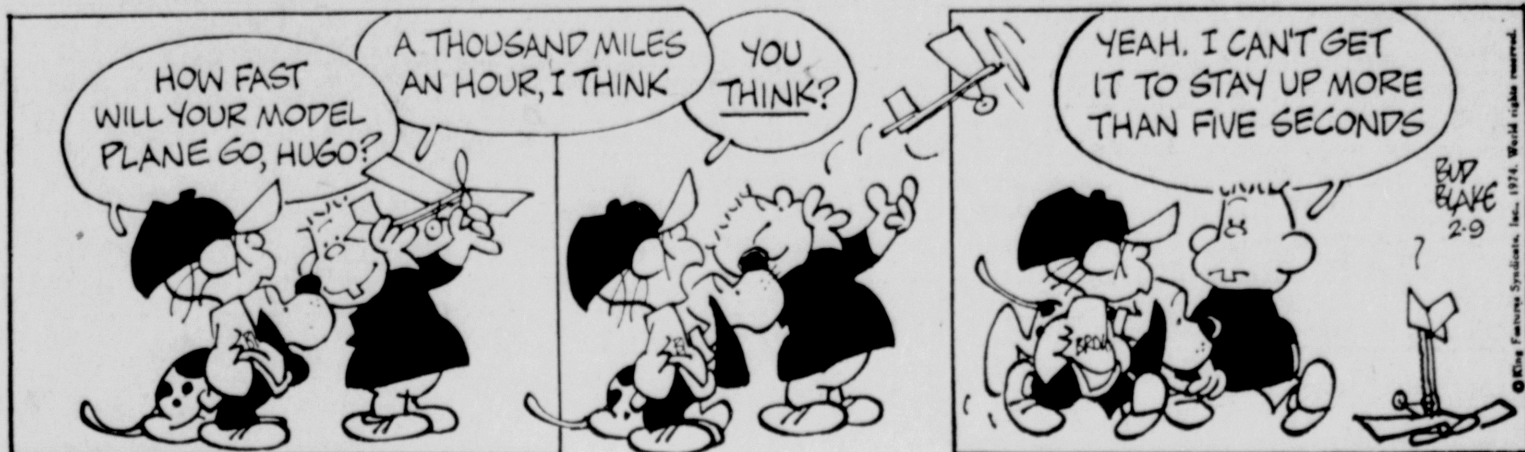

People attending pay 2½ pence (about 6 cents) a week. "The money is used to buy small gifts which are given for every stone (14 pounds) lost," a council official said.

Councillor Mrs. Mary Smith, who admits to weighing "a bit over 21 stone (294 pounds)" has promised to reduce her bulk by 147 pounds by the time the borough's mayor completes his year of office next May.

Juvenile Court Sentences Two Adults, Two Youths

Two adults and two youths were sentenced in Pickaway County Juvenile Court this past week. Other cases on the week's docket included the transfer of two cases, termination of 14 and the dismissal of four.

Debra Jean Hughes, Route 1, Clarksburg and Delbert Thomas, Hillsboro, pleaded guilty to contributing to the delinquency of a minor filed by the Circleville Police Department. Each of the adult defendants was sentenced to a six months jail term with all the time suspended except a sentence equal to the one they received in Circleville Municipal Court. Juvenile Judge Guy Cline ordered the two jail terms to run concurrently, fined the pair $100 each and placed them on probation for three years.

A 16-year-old Circleville girl was sentenced to 20 days in jail for school truancy. The court suspended ten of the days and gave her credit for another ten she had already spent in jail. For the charge of violation of probation, the girl was placed on continued probation for a period of three years.

Violation of probation and school truancy charges brought continued probation and a jail sentence to a 16-year-old Circleville boy. The court had originally sentenced the youth to 60 days in jail and suspended the remainder of the term after he had spent 18 days in detention. Judge Cline placed him on probation for three years.

Consent was granted from the juvenile court for a 16-year-old boy and a 16-year-old girl to marry. Upon the request of assistant county prosecutor, James R. Kingsley, the court dismissed three cases. A charge of non support was dismissed against Joseph E. Goodwin. Goodwin had been making regular payments.

Charges of school truancy were dismissed against a 15-year-old Orient girl and a 16-year-old Circleville boy. A final case dismissed was a charge of violation of probation against an 18-year-old Mt. Sterling boy.

Two cases were transferred to other counties and 14 cases were terminated with the Pickaway County Children's Services. Of the terminated cases, three of the youths had reached the age of 18 and were living independently, one moved out of state, two were unable to be located, one was committed to the Ohio Youth Commission, four were being cared for by responsible parents and two were working and living with one parent.

A report released by Deputy Clerk Jessica Wood showed the court had filed a total of 47 cases during the month of January and terminated 57 during that period. Seventy-nine cases were pending at the end of December and 69 at the end of January.

Of the cases filed, 23 were delinquency cases, 14 were unruly, 15 traffic, one dependent child, one neglected child and three adult.

During January, one boy and one girl were sentenced to the temporary care of the Ohio Youth Commission and one boy was committed permanently.

No Food Shortage Seen For Now In Columbus Area

The independent truckers' strike has resulted in higher grocery prices and some shortages in the Cleveland area, but apparently hasn't affected Columbus.

A spot check in the two cities shows the protest, which has been concentrated in northeast Ohio, has had the greatest impact there.

A spokesman for a Cleveland grocery chain said the trucker shutdown "definitely had an effect on the supply (of meat) and drove the price up."

"There seems to be some easing up today (Friday) in that some loads of meat are beginning to move to the East," he added. "Next week will tell the story."

The spokesman said meat prices went up 10 to 15 cents per pounds in the last week because of the truck situation.

The shortage has been mostly in chicken and pork, he said, noting that most beef is shipped by rail.

"We seem to have enough at the moment, but it's tight," he said.

In Columbus, spokesmen at three grocery chains and one independent store said they were having no problems.

Ben Stafford, owner of Stafford's Greendale Market in Columbus, said his regular orders for meat, poultry, canned goods and produce have been arriving on schedule.

"We do look for it (shortages) next week," Stafford said. "That's on account of what the papers say. But from what the suppliers say, we haven't heard anything."

The manager of a Columbus chain store said he had no shortages except in poultry, and "not to any great degree" there.

PUCO Backs Rate Boost

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Iron and steel haulers in Ohio were authorized Friday to raise their rates by 4 per cent to meet rising fuel costs.

The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio approved the rate increase for truckers represented by the Ohio Carriers Service, Inc. Other truckers who carry iron and steel can also impose the new rate, the PUCO said.

The new rate is effective Monday and extends through May 11, the commission said. A new order would be necessary then to extend the rates.

The PUCO said its order "is designed to provide relief to those independent truckers who are facing escalating fuel costs when they must take on fuel from service station outlets."

Independents Sue Exxon

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — A $4 million damage suit has been filed in U.S. District Court against the Exxon Corp. by independent Exxon dealers claiming the firm discriminates in its gasoline deliveries.

Members of the Kanawha County and Putnam County members of the West Virginia Exxon Dealers Association filed the action Friday, accusing Exxon of practices that place dealer-owned stations at a disadvantage with company-owned Exxon outlets and other non-Exxon stations in the area.

The dealers also claim the company's three grades of gasoline—Extra, Plus and Exxon—are of the same grade and quality. The dealers also charged that all grades of Exxon oil are alike.

The suit contends that Exxon bulk plants here and at nearby Boomer have turned away gasoline supply barges while refusing to deliver to the noncompany stations.

Exxon makes regular deliveries and offers lower prices to its company-owned stations, the suit charges, while irregular deliveries and unfair prices are the practice for independent Exxon outlets.

Two Men Face Charges In Recent Deaths

Two men face charges of vehicular homicide as a result of the recent traffic fatalities of a State Highway Patrolman and a Conneaut man.

David Richardson, 19, Columbus was arraigned in Columbus Municipal Court Wednesday on a charge of aggravated vehicular homicide as a result of the accident which claimed the life of Patrolman Jerry Neff on Jan. 30. Richardson was bound to the grand jury on the charge and will be tried by a jury in the municipal court later on two other charges, operating a stolen vehicle and reckless operation.

An involuntary manslaughter charge was filed in Circleville Municipal Court Friday against Forrest Webster, 218 Walnut St. Webster is also charged with driving the wrong way on a four lane highway.

Dean Colbert, 39, Conneaut, died of injuries sustained in the head-on collision with the Webster vehicle on Jan. 8. Colbert was traveling south on U.S. Route 23 when he was struck by Webster traveling north in the south-bound lane. Fatally injured, Colbert died on Jan. 12.

Webster is scheduled for arraignment before Judge Sterling Lamb on Feb. 22. After conducting a lengthy investigation of the accident, State Highway Patrolman Robert Hartsook advised the court Friday he wanted a summons for the manslaughter charge.
